ADVANCE PROMOTIONAL MATERIAL

Please describe your book in 300-500 words. Reading a description is the way most people will first encounter your book; therefore, we invite you, as the person who best knows your work and its intended audience, to craft a descriptive essay that will appeal to a diverse readership of academics, teachers, librarians, booksellers, editors and others. We suggest that you begin with a summary sentence or two that describe your book in a succinct and interesting manner. We then ask you develop the basic themes from these sentences into four distinct paragraphs, each of which explains your book to one of four specific audiences, defined below. Please keep in mind that these readerships will not share a uniformly complex understanding of your subject matter. Finally, in order to increase the likelihood of your book being located by web searches, we ask that you please use item 6 below to list 10 keywords or phrases that are closely associated with your work in our web copy and other online materials, in order to ensure that your book is as findable as possible online.

CAN BE TYPED SEPARATELY AND ATTACHED

1. Summary sentence (or two)
2. An introductory paragraph to that describes what the book is about.
3. In an effort to enhance your book's presence on the Web and its ability to be found using various search engines such as Google, please provide a list of 10 keywords and/or phrases that describe your book.
4. Please list 3-5 people, and their affiliations, whom we could approach for a promotional statement. They should be chosen to represent the book to different reader groups you hope to attract to your work.
5. Please send a professional (head and shoulders) photograph of yourself. A digital photograph is referred, and it should be 300 dpi and at least 6 inches along one side. Please include the proper credit line with the photo.
